Roosevelt is Physically Weary Under Strain of New Deal Details

WASHINGTON — Behind the President's desire to get Congress off his hands early in June are—above all—two things.

One is the fact that he is tired.

The other is his belief that what the country needs is less uncertainty regarding its future course. With Congress out of the way, Roosevelt feels that business, agriculture and his own administrators can dig in at the job of putting into effect the mass of new Congressional legislation.

This latter would be more easily possible were it not for the fact that a lot of New Deal administrators begin groping in the dark the minute the Man at the Helm is a stone's throw away from Washington. And this summer he will be enroute to Hawaii.

This situation remains the weakest link in the Roosevelt Administration. Without the Man in the White House, the cabinet members, the recovery agencies and the other New Dealers get out of tune. There is no correlating agency.

This again is one reason the President is so tired. Enough detail comes across his desk to swamp any two men. He has not delegated enough responsibility. And when you look at some of the men to whom he should delegate it, you can understand why.

This also is one reason Roosevelt has vacillated recently. He is too tired, too rushed, to go into everything carefully—and too anxious to get Congress off his hands.

Sooner or later Roosevelt is going to have to hire some new help.

From the Record

Representative Charles A. Eaton, New Jersey Republican: "What size shoes does the gentleman wear?"

Representative Marion A. Zioncheck, youthful first-termer from the State of Washington: "No. 9, and I am proud of it. It is a plain answer. I do not try to evade any question. What size do you wear?"

Eaton: "No. 10, and I am proud of it. If the gentleman's head was as big as his feet he would amount to something."

Mississippi Hot-Spot

The national hot-spot is going to Mississippi in more ways than the weather this summer. During the month of August a lot of political attention will be focused on it.

At that time will be decided the three-cornered race for the Senate between Hubert Stephens, the incumbent; ex-Governor Theodore A. Bilbo, and Representative Ross Collins, one of the foremost members of the House.

Stephens probably will be counted out early, leaving the chief race between Bilbo and Collins.

Bilbo was for some time employed on a $6,000 a year job clipping papers for the AAA.

Ross Collins, as chairman of the House Committee on War Department Appropriations, runs the Army more than any other civilian,has forced the generals to cast aside sabre and saddle and adopt modern weapons of war. His fight for the purchase of the Gutenberg Bible and the Czar's liberary was used against him in the Mississippi Bible Belt, but culminated in an important cultural contribution to the Library of Congress.

Bird Lover

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau is a country gentleman and a nature lover. He is particularly fond of birds.

But the two woodpeckers which took to drumming each morning just outside his window strained even his patience with feathered friends.

After putting up with them for a while Young Henry finally appealed to the Agriculture Department. Would the Department please send around an expert to look into the problem of woodpeckers at 5 a. m.?

Morgenthau emphasised that he did not want the birds shot. But he would appreciate greatly their

B. WHITLOCK, WAR FIGURE, DEAD AT 65

WAS TOLEDO MAYOR

Became Famous as U. S. Minister to Belgium

CANNES, France, May 24.—Brand Whitlock, famous American diplomat and author, died here today following an operation.

Whitlock was 65 years old.

An ambassador to Belgium during the World War he gained a place among the world's most famous diplomats.

As a former mayor of Toledo, O., he was known as one of the most capable municipal executives in the United States.

As an author of many novels, short stories and other works he achieved a permanent place in world literature.

TRIED TO SAVE NURSE

One of the outstanding incidents in Whitlock's career was his unsuccessful attempt to save the life of Edith Cavell, the British nurse who was executed by a German military court as a spy.

Whitlock was born in Urbana, O., March 4, 1869. He was a newspaper reporter in Toledo and later in Chicago where he was a contemporary of George Ade, James Whitcomb Riley, finally Peter Dunne and other famous authors. He studied law and was admitted to the Illinois bar. Later he practiced law in Toledo.

Whitlock was operated upon several months ago and had been in poor health since then. He remained at the hospital recuperating for a second operation from which he failed to rally today. Both operations were to relieve a prostatic condition. His wife was at his bedside.

"We Gave Them What They Had Been Dishing," Says Ranger of Barrow Case

BY RAY BUMGARDNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

ARCADIA, La., May 24.—Bonnie Parker, the girl who smoked big black cigars and wrote bad poetry, and her desperado lover, Clyde Barrow, had a premonition that they would meet sudden and violent ends.

Relatives of the long-hunted pair, who were shot and killed by four quick shooting Texas officers and a Louisiana sheriff and his deputy yesterday, said today that Bonnie and Barrow had often predicted just such a death as they encountered.

Only a few months ago, the 23-year-old Bonnie penned these lines in her last poetic effusion:

"Some day they will go down together, and they will bury them side by side.

"To a few it means grief, to the law it's relief, but it's death to Bonnie and Clyde."

BEYOND IMAGINATION

It is doubtful, however, whether even their most phophetic imaginings gave either the arrogant, boastful Barrow or his hard-boiled girl friend an accurate picture of the completeness and awful certainty of their passing.

The pair's relatives were agreed that the officers who ambushed them might have given them more of a fighting chance.

To this, Captain Frank Hamer, formerly of the Texas rangers, who is considered one of the foremost peace officers in the southwest, replied:

"We just gave them some of the stuff they've been dishing out. We set a trap and they walked into it. But we gave them a chance—called on them to halt, but they reached for guns. I never discuss a case I'm working on before, during or after its conclusion."

U.S. PROGRAM AIDS FARMERS $539,006.30

State Board of Review Announces Sum Allowed to Pickaway-Co.

Benefits to Pickaway-co from the corn and hog program will total $539,006.30, according to Guy Dowdy, county agricultural agent.

Figures released from the state Board of Reviews credited Pickaway-co with 15,019 acres of corn contracted land. The State Board of Reviews has granted an average of 40.6 bushels per acre on the contracted land in the county. This means that 30 cents per bushel, less the cost of administration, will be paid on 608,771 bushels of corn that would have been raised on the contracted land. The benefit payments covering all corn land is $182,631.30.

The State Board of Review has granted Pickaway-co farmers an average of 95,033 hogs marketed per year for the contract figures. This total is to be reduced by 25 per cent which means that the farmers signing corn-hog contracts will cut the hog production 23,758 head in 1934 under the 1932-33 average which will enable these contract signers to sell 71,271 hogs in 1934. At $5 per head, benefit payment, there will be paid Pickaway-co farmers, $356,375, less the cost of Administration. The total benefit payments for both corn and hog payments will therefore amount to $539,006.30.

OVER ESTIMATE

When the campaign was first started, it was estimated that the benefit payments to his county would amount to $465,000, provided every farmer signed a contract. It now appears that this amount will be increased by $74,000. This is due to the fact that the number of hogs produced and the yields of corn during the last two years were greater than anticipated by Government Officials.

At the time the corn-hog program was started, the Processing Tax was established at a figure which would pay Pickaway-co farmers $465,000. However, they have been liberal in their findings and will set aside a larger amount which is based upon figures furnished by Surveys made in the county.

There is still considerable work to be done before the final report can be certified to Washington. The contracted land appraisement in the county was several bushels per acre more than that granted by the State Board of Review. Also the number of hogs marketed by the Contract signers is about 9 per cent higher than the amount allowed by the governments quota.

DELINQUENT TAXES $87,436 IN COUNTY

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24.—Delinquent and uncollected taxes in Pickaway-co, including state and local levies, totaled $87,436 according to a report made public today by the Census Bureau of the department of commerce.

The Pickaway-co figures were part of a tabulation of tax delinquency for the entire state of Ohio.

The uncollected and delinquent taxes in Pickaway-co represent 12.5 per cent of the total tax levy for the county, the census bureau reported. This levy was $688,930, on the basis of a property assessment of $46,824,115.

For the same period delinquent and uncollected taxes for the entire state totaled $50,525,635, or 25 per cent of the total levy, which was $202,250,897, on the basis of a total assessment in the state of $10,032,442,002.

The figures are the result of a compilation made by the division of real estate taxation of the census bureau and includes all town and city levies, the commerce department reported.

The tax delinquency figures, commerce department tax experts pointed out, are valuable as indicating which areas had suffered most from the depression. It was pointed out that rural and mountainous sections of the state had far higher rates of delinquency than manufacturing sections, despite the higher assessment in the latter section.

RURAL PLANS TO BE AIRED

Meeting Called This Evening At Weiler's Office; Renick Is Appointed.

A meeting to discuss plans for Pickaway-co's part in the rural recovery program will be held Thursday evening in the office of E. W. Weiler, relief director, with township leaders, county commissioners and others to attend.

Former Mayor Henry C. Renick has been appointed temporary rural recovery supervisor by H. H. Hughes, director of the state rural recovery program. He has started his work.

The county has been allotted $1,000, Weiler reports, for the rural program for the remainder of May. An effort will be made to spend this money on worthwhile work.

Mr. Weiler also reported Thursday that he has been granted $320 additional money from the government under the "works division" of the FERA and that landscaping work at Berger hospital will be completed with this fund.

Fifteen men have been assigned to the job and were expected to go to work this afternoon.

Persons in rural sections who have land or vacant houses to rent should register their properties at Weiler's office in the Bales building, the relief director said Thursday.

The land and the residences will be used for indigent families in rural sections only.

ITALY AGAIN GOAL OF PAIR

Pond and Sabelli Take Off From Dublin Airport On 1250 Mile Trip.

CARDIFF, Wales, May 24.—George R. Pond and Cesare Sabelli, American aviators, arrived here at 1:05 p. m. (8:05 A. M. E. D. T.) after a flight from Port Talbot, Wales. They had been forced down at Port Talbot earlier by engine trouble after a flight from Baldonnel field, Dublin.

The aviators intend to remain here until necessary repairs are made to permit continuation of their projected flight to Rome.

DUBLIN, May 24.—Resuming their flight from New York to Rome, George R. Pond and Cesare Sabelli, American flyers, hopped off from Baldonnel airport at 6:33 a. m. today to attempt a non-stop trip to the Italian capital.

The airmen expected to make the 1250-mile flight in about 12 hours, which would bring them down at their destination about 6:30 p. m. B. S. T. (1:30 p. m. E. D. T.) Their route lay across the Irish Sea, England, the English channel, and France to Italy.

Carrying 500 gallons of gasoline, Pond and Sabelli made a perfect take-off after a long run of 600 yards. Weather conditions were perfect.

Abandoning a previous plan to stop at London, the flyers said they would stop at Croydon airdrome, near London, only in the event of a recurrence of the motor trouble which forced them down at Lahinch, on Ireland's west coast, on their hop from New York last week.

A large representation of the Irish Free State air force personnel was out on the field early to bid the Americans farewell. Both Pond and Sabelli thanked Captain Quinn for the efficient manner in which his mechanics had repaired their plane at Lahinch.

The woman, reported slightly hard of hearing, stepped from the side of the road in front of Barton's machine and was struck by the right front headlight. She was knocked to the pavement and rolled over. It was fortunate for her that Barton, who according to witnesses, was not driving fast. He was able to stop his automobile while she was still under the car.

Mrs. Mitchell was taken into the residence of Donald Morris, opposite whose home the accident happened, and was removed from there to Berger hospital where she was treated by Dr. Lloyd Jonnes.

She was expected to be returned home today.

TROOPS BREAK TOLEDO SIEGE

STRIKERS DISBAND

No One Killed in Night's Brisk Rioting

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Charles P. Taft, of Cincinnati, son of the late President Taft, today was appointed a special mediator of the labor department to attempt settlement of a series of strikes now prevailing in Toledo, O. He is now enroute to that city.

TOLEDO, May 24.—Charging up Champlian avenue with fixed bayonets, Ohio National guardsmen today raised the 24 hour siege of the Toledo Electric Auto-lite plant, driving before their gleaming blades a remnant of the strike crowd of 7,000 which had tried all night with bullets and bricks to storm the plant and reach 1,500 trapped employees.

The soldiers arrived shortly after 6 a. m. sloshing determinedly through the cold rain. They met with no resistance. A rain-tamed crowd of several hundred including early rising spectators fled precipitately before the threatening bayonets.

ESCORTED FROM AREA

The 1,500 weary workers, 500 of them women, were removed from the factory and escorted out of the riot area by the troops. The soldiers , in command of Major General Ludwig Conelly, established a blockade around the plant, and established barricades against the possibility or renewed rioting.

The guardsmen had been mobilized to disperse the beseigers at the request of Sheriff David Kreiger, who is understood to have telephoned the governor's office in Columbus that the situation was out of control.

Almost miraculously , the rioting had claimed no lives, but scores were injured, two seriously. Peter Repinger, 50, who drove past the plant during one of the almost continuous assaults by the mob, was taken to a hospital after a tear gas bomb struck him in the face. Patrolman Casimir Wawrzyniak was struck in the foot by a bomb when the beseiged deputies fired by mistake into a group of police and firemen. One girl, Stella Johnson, telephone and switchboard operator at the plant, was wounded in the arm by a bullet. Her wound was not serious.

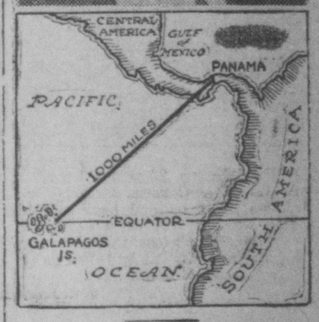
Await Ship To Help Robinson



American Too Serious To Operate On Island; May Go To Balboa.

ABOARD FISHING VESSEL SANTA CRUZ, TAGUS COVE, GALAPOGOS ISLANDS, May 24.—The United States navy's dramatic race to save the life of William A. Robinson, (shown above), American author and traveller stricken with acute appendicitis in this remote corner of the Pacific, shifted suddenly today from the air to the sea.

Two navy surgeons, arriving here last night after a clock-like 12-hour flight in speedy naval seaplanes from Balboa, C. Z., nearly 1,000 miles away, decided Robinson was too ill to be operated upon either aboard his 32-foot ketch Svaap or aboard this fishing vessel, anchored nearby.

Consequently they urged that the destroyer Hale, which already was speeding here from Balboa, continue with all haste to the stricken writer aboard and rush him to a hospital, probably at Balboa, for the serious major operation necessary.

A. T. & T. NEXT FOR SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The Senate interstate commerce committee today prepared to decide whether a searchlight will be directed into the affairs of the largest public utility in the world.

Senator Dill (D) of Washington, longtime foe of utility monopolies, sought a committee decision on his resolution authorizing a Senate investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., which operates the world's biggest telephone and telegraph services.

As the committee began its session, there was evidence of A. T. and T. pressure to prevent the inquiry, Senator Dill said.

WORK ON MEMBERS

"Company representatives have talked to a number of members of the committee and they even sent men to work on me," Dill asserted.

His resolution would direct the committee or any duly authorized subcommittee to conduct the inquiry and to report to the Senate the facts ascertained with recommendations for such legislation as the committee deems desirable. A maximum appropriation of $25,000 would finance the investigation.

One of the most important subjects for inquiry would be what the resolution describes as "methods whereby the company or its subsidiaries or affiliates or its officers or directors have sought through propaganda, or the expenditure of money or the control of channels of publicity, to influence or control public opinion or elections."

HICKMAN TO DENY GUILT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24.—Millard R. Hickman, 45, wealthy shipping official, will appear in court today and plead not guilty to charges that he criminally attacked and murdered pretty Louise Jeppesen, 23, of Ogden, Utah, in a lonely tunnel in Golden Gate park here early Sunday, May 13.

Defense Attorney Harry McKenzie declared his private investigators have discovered "important evidence."

"An attendant of a riding stable near the scene of his heinous crime has revealed that he was awakened at approximately the time of the murder," McKenzie said.

"He told us he heard two men talking. He heard one say, 'this would be a good place.' Then the stableman called out, 'who are you and what do you want.'

"The two men, he said, ran away."

The defense contends that the titian-haired Utah beauty was the victim of moron prowlers in the park; that Hickman was not near the park on the morning of May 13, but was entertaining Miss Blanche McKay, a pretty blonde, in his hotel suite.

TEEGARDINS BULLS GO TO AUSTRALIA

C. B. Teegardin & Sons, local Polled Shorthorn breeders, have shipped two members of their 1933 show herd to Douglas Munro, Gundibri, Merriwa, New South Wales, Australia.

Mr. Munro personally visited the herds of the United States early this spring and selected 10 head that he regarded as the best obtainable, from which he plans to build a herd of this breed. He is one of the leading ranchmen of Australia and his main ranch contains over 600,000 acres.

From the Teegardin herd, he selected the bull Oakwood Resolution, a championship winner at the 1933 International Livestock exposition, and a many times champion at the leading shows of 1932 and 1933. It is of note that this bull is a son of Oakwood Rodney, 1929 International Grand Champion bull, sold in 1930 for export to Uruguay, South America.

The other animal purchased was a female, Oakwood Golden Glow, who headed her class as a yearling heifer at the 1933 International Live Stock exposition.

Promptly upon selling Oakwood Resolution to Mr. Munro, the Teegardins purchased Highland Stamp in Illinois, one of the outstanding bulls of the country, but a cablegram from Wright, Stevenson and Company of New Zealand made them such an attractive offer on this bull that he has been sold to them for one of their clients. He will go forward with the Munro cattle from Chicago and embark from Los Angeles.

The trip from Chicago will require 50 days to reach Australia.

"We Gave Them What They Had Been Dishing"

Hamer is a veteran of 52 gun-battles with smugglers and is considered a remarkable shot. Deputy Sheriffs Ted Hinton and Bob Alcorn and State Highway Patrolman B. M. Gault, a former ranger, were the Texas officers with Hamer and all had proven their mettle in previous encounters with the lawless. The Louisiana officers were Sheriff Henderson Jordan of Bienville parish and his deputy, Oakley.

Hopelessly trapped by the officers as they drove their Ford coupe toward their farmhouse hideaway in the waste lands around Gibsland, Bienville parish, the two veterans of innumerable gun battles and narrow escapes were riddled with no less than 50 machine gun and rifle bullets.

At the Arcadia morgue where the bodies were taken last night it was said that almost three pounds of lead had been pumped into the pair and that their faces had been disfigured almost beyond recognition.

Most of the wounds were found to be in the heads and chests.

Relatives of both Barrow and the Parker girl in the southwest were grief-stricken and indignant today—the former because of their deaths, the latter because of the manner of their passing.

Billie Parker Mace, Bonnie's sister, who is being held on a murder charge in the Tarrant county jail at Fort Worth, Texas, went bitterly when she learned of the shooting.

Since her incarceration several months ago, Billie's chief concern has been not her own, but her sister's fate.

MURDERED GUARD

She is charged with complicity in the murder of Major Crowson, a guard at the Eastham state prison farm, who was shot and killed presumably by Clyde and Bonnie as they were delivering Henry Methvin and Raymond Hamilton, Barrow's former pal, from the institution.

Barrow's aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barrow, who operate a filling station on the outskirts of West Dallas, were grief stricken when told the news. Mrs. Barrow was inconsolable and said she would go to Arcadia today to claim her son's body.

Bonnie's mother likewise was overcome.

None of the officers was inclined to discuss today how the information concerning the Gibsland hideout of the outlaw pair was obtained.

For more than six weeks Hamer and his associates have scouted the waste lands around Gibsland knowing that sooner or later Barrow and his girl would put in an appearance at their farmhouse hideway.

When the time came early yesterday the officers were ready with a well laid trap—the roads were bottled up and the officers were carefully ambushed behind thick brush.

When the dust covered car, which Barrow had driven for many months, hove into sight it was moving at a moderate speed.

According to the story told by Hamer's deputies, one of the officers stepped into the road to flag the car. Barrow immediately applied his brakes and both he and Bonnie reached for their guns.

Both came up with weapons in their hands and as they did so the five concealed officers laid down a deadly barrage of machine gun rifle fire, the bullets ripping through the front of the car.

NEITHER FIRED SHOT

As Barrow's hand slipped from the wheel the car careened slowly to a stop against a dirt embankment on the right side of the road.

Both Clyde and Bonnie were dead as the officers peered into the riddled automobile, their bodies jarred into grotesque postures as the car struck the embankment.

Thus ended the careers of the most ruthless killer the southwest has known in modern times and his quick-shooting girl pal.

For two hours or more the bodies were left lying in the car. Then a tow car came and hauled the machine, with the bodies still in it, through Gibsland to Arcadia.

In both towns thousands lined the streets seeking a view of the killers.

IN LINE OF DUTY

Dr. J. L. Wade, Arcadia coroner, rendered his verdict at the scene of the killing, i. e., "Death by gunfire from officers in the line of their duty."

At a late hour last night it was said that funeral arrangements had not been made for either Clyde or Bonnie, but it was expected the bodies would be shipped to Dallas, there to be claimed by relatives, tonight or tomorrow.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 3 pints of fluid a day which contains 4 pounds of waste matter.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

TROOPS BREAK

were mobilized shortly after midnight.

The rioting grew out of the strike of Auto-Lite employes belonging to the United Automobile Workers Union. It was late yesterday afternoon that the usual sporadic disorders of a picket line developed into a mass attack on the factory.

Deputy sheriffs, rushed into the plant under the leadership of Sheriff Kreiger, found themselves imprisoned within the factory. Outside, raging at the gates and bombarding the plant with bricks and stones, stormed a mob which grew rapidly from 1,000 to 6,000 or 7,000.

The deputies set up machine guns at the plant gates, but as far as could be learned by these outside, only tear gas guns were fired by the defending forces. Police threw a cordon about the entire area, but could do no more than attempt to control the fringes of the crowd. Several policemen were injured by the barrages of tear gas from the factory walls.

Firemen, charging into the riot area when rioters set fire to two automobiles, were mistaken for attackers and were sent choking and gasping beyond the firing line.

PICTURE OF WARFARE

Throughout the night, the strike area presented a picture of actual warfare. Groups of rioters surged about the plant, now and then attempting to rush the gates, only to be beaten back by booming tear gas bombs and the threatening muzzles of machine-guns. All lights in the district were extinguished or smashed early in the evening except the blue lamps on the top floor of the big factory. These glowed on through the rain, flickering now and then as a brick crashed through one of the upper windows.

Censorship Relaxed

AN easing of the German press censorship has been announced by the reich's minister of propaganda. Dr. Joseph Goebbels. New regulations relating to newspapers have been issued.

The changes made come far from restoring the liberty of the press, but they do relax somewhat the severe restrictions that had been imposed under the Hitler regime. Henceforth the newspapers themselves will be free to report public meetings, "unless important considerations demand otherwise;" the publication of speches in official text is not compulsory, except in special cases; editorials are allowed, editorial writers being permitted to give their own viewpoints "as far as possible within the scope of the press law."

It is interesting to note that among the factors that caused the government to relax the censorship was the serious falling off in circulation of newspapers. Thus, one of the main purposes of the censorship—the spreading of Nazi propaganda—was being defeated. If the newspapers had no readers, the government could not get its propaganda before the public in the form of "news matter." A publication that is only the organ or the propaganda medium of a political organization is of no value as a newspaper, and the public usually is quick to find this out.

The new regulations do not mean a lifting of the censorship. They are chiefly important as showing that the government is beginning to recognize that censorship can be carried too far, even from its own standpoint.

How to Do It

TWO thousand slot machines dumped into the Atlantic ocean by New York city police just after the newly-enacted state anti-slot machine law went into effect seems a convincing answer to those who had argued that slot machines couldn't be abolished.

The new law makes it illegal to manufacture, own, store, possess, sell, rent, lease, let on shares, lend, give away, transport, operate or permit the operation of slot machines. Its language is plain. The act is aimed at slot machines, and seeks to make no distinction between those which may be regarded as gambling devices and others. Its definition of slot machines is all-inclusive. There are no loopholes.

It remains simply for the police authorities to do their part in order to rid the state of slot machines. This they can do by seizing and destroying such machines as fast as they are placed in operation, and even any which may not be in operation. The work is made easy by the simplicity of the law.

SYNOPSIS

Stanley Paige, beautiful, young society girl, is left penniless when her lawyer speculates with her money and loses. Stanley, however, cares little for the money, feeling that she has everything in the love of fascinating Drew Armitage. But when Drew breaks their engagement saying it would be impossible to marry on his income, she is heartbroken. Rather than accept aid from her wealthy friends, Stanley rents an inexpensive furnished room and disappears from her exclusive circle to try and make her own way. Her friends agree that a better way would have been to marry handsome Perry Deverest, but Stanley cannot forget Drew. Then, one day, she meets John Harmon Northrup, struggling young author. A strong friendship ensues and they become very necessary to one another. John Harmon is in love with Stanley but refrains from telling her because of Drew. As time passes, his kindness and consideration win Stanley's affection and they are married. Thinking only of Stanley's happiness, John Harmon makes an agreement with her that, if the time should ever come when they cannot give each other the wonderful companionship and understanding they have now, they must end their relationship. After three months of married life, Stanley is serenely happy, but John Harmon has become so necessary to her that she realizes, in order to preserve their happiness, she must have other interests to keep her from getting restless while he is writing. She applies for work in a bookshop.

CHAPTER THIRTY

An old man in a black skullcap aproached her, stared at her penetratingly from behind enormous horn-rimmed spectacles. He was little and wizened and his face had taken on the color of the yellowed pages of his books, but his eyes, like the words on their printed pages, were still remarkably clear and discerning.

"I saw your card," Stanley began a bit uncertainly.

"So?" the old man continued to stare at her.

"I would like the place." Stanley spoke abruptly, feeling that with this old person words were superfluous.

"Why?" His voice, like his stare, was even and penetrating. It seemed to brush aside trivialities, to get at the heart of things.

"Because I like books, because I want a job, because I want to belong somewhere, have some—vocation."

"You like books, but do you know anything about them?"

"Not much, but I could learn. I think I could learn very easily if you would bother."

A sudden twinkle disturbed the directness of the old man's stare. "Teaching people who wish to learn is never a bother; it is teaching fools that is a nuisance and a waste of time. The pay is small," he added abruptly, "and my customers are few—and not interested in pretty girls," he waited, watching her impartially.

"I would like the place," Stanley repeated, returning his gaze unwaveringly.

"Then come in the morning at nine. We will see how valuable you can make yourself to me. I am an old man, I do not like to use the stepladder, and in the early afternoon I walk in the park."

Outside the shop, she looked for a name, found it painted on a blackboard in faded gold letters, "Felix Rose—Books."

She turned and walked swiftly southward, her eyes bright, her hands deep in her pockets. She had a job, she had John Harmon. She would be away from him all day, but she would come back to him at night. The closed door would no longer shut her out, for she would not be there to be shut out; she would be on the other side of a door herself—the door of a dim and narrow bookshop.

John Harmon quietly accepted Stanley's announcement. She told him that night after they had had dinner on a shaky card table before the fire. It was characteristic of Stanley that she didn't try to explain and characteristic of John Harmon that he didn't need an explanation. As a matter of fact, he was conscious of a rather startling feeling of relief.

If John Harmon had seemed the same to Stanley in these weeks since their marriage, it was because he had compelled himself to seem the same; if he had rumpled his hair and laughed easily and spent long hours behind a closed door, it had been because it was natural for John Harmon to rumple his hair and laugh easily with Stanley and shut himself away from her when he wanted most desperately to be with her. He had compelled himself to do just this for a long time now and a habit, when motivated by an impulse as strong as this one which shielded Stanley from the full force of his love for her, was not easily put aside.

In his marriage John Harmon had found no release from his self-imposed restraint. He felt very humble about his happiness and very responsible. There were times when he could have wept over the sweetness of this thing that had happened to him and other times when he stood in shaking fear of it. He gave Stanley just what he thought she wanted from him—and kept his passion lashed to a mast. Had he loved her less, it would have been impossible. But because he loved her so much, so terribly much, he could shut himself up in his study but he could not write.

If Stanley, waiting impatiently in the room beyond, knew restlessness, John Harmon sitting slumped over his typewriter, knew despair. He had to write—and to write he had to lose his own identity, to become a mere automaton, an instrument of his inspiration; and just now with Stanley so near, with memories of her even nearer and more demanding, he could not lose any part of himself—he could not conjure up any inspiration. No longer could he wander in a world of imagery. He was himself. He was very much alive and vital in a world of reality—a world of devastating, confusing, rapturous realities.

But because John Harmon was in love with his craft and because he was intensely in love with Stanley and because he saw in his passion for her a threatening disaster to both of these beloved objects, he stayed in the room behind the closed door and wrote aimlessly, or not at all, and wondered where it would all end.

And then, miraculously, Stanley had gone. She was away from early morning till late afternoon. Once more John Harmon was alone—alone with his paper and his ink and his inspiration. No longer was he conscious of every movement in the outer room, no longer did every minute spent at his desk require an effort, no longer was there any need to try to forget that he had only to speak to summon her. She had gone and at night she would come back to him. Until then he could forget himself, forget Stanley. Once more he found that he could write. And with the undescribable joy that only the sensitively creative can ever know he fell upon his task and lost himself in it.

He was writing for a purpose now—not just for the joy of writing, not just for the satisfaction of expressing through the written word the thoughts that cried out to be expressed, but because his writing had suddenly become a definite part of his and Stanley's life together. It was less his craft and more his job—it must earn money for him, for them. And so he went at it furiously, even feverishly, and if he lost something in depth, he gained much in breadth, for his mind seemed very keen these days and very agile. He wrote rapidly and easily and sent out an amazing number of stories to Maynard.

Maynard read them and raised an eyebrow and fed them to his ever hungry magazines. They were good stuff, they would catch on, they were exceptionally clever—not what he had thought the boy would do, of course, but then Maynard was always seeing things in people and then being disappointed; he was always catching glimpses of the sort of thing he had wanted to do, before the public had caught him and broken him to her demands. He had thought that in those early stories young Northrup had sent in there had been a touch of genius, a rare quality of understanding, an awareness of beauty—in people, in nature, in the whole complicated fabric of life; but if it had been there, it was gone now. But the stuff was clever and it was good magazine fodder. It was the sort of thing the public liked in big doses, and it was Maynard's job to give it to them. He sighed a bit at that relinquishing of a faint hope; and wrote John Harmon good-sized checks.

And so it happened that John Harmon's name appeared frequently in print and the problem of money was no longer vital and he gave up the proof reading and gave himself over to the finishing of his novel. Maynard had promised to look at it if he could get it into shape for spring publication.

He had rewritten the first chapters, discarding the ones started during the summer, the ones conceived while he was still in Vermont. He thought of them as immature—too idealistic. He went at them again with a surer hand—drew in his characters with a bolder touch; in these new chapters everything was intensified, the mouths of the women were more red, their beauty more decisive, his men were cleaner-cut, more virile, with fewer of the finer nuances of character. Both the men and women talked more and thought less, they moved across the pages quickly, colorfully, they did things abruptly and well and with a great deal of nonchalance and well-bred indifference, and they did a tremendous number of things—fascinating, clever things—things people would like to read about.

John Harmon was satisfied. He worked fast until for some unexplainable reason he could not work at all—the whole thing seemed to collapse on his hands. He had gone so far and he could go no further. He had no more phrases, no more situations—no more anything. The manuscript ceased to be a book and became just scrawled pages of words, and John Harmon knew despair and restlessness and ugly black depression.

But being John Harmon, he kept it to himself, until one night when suddenly for no reason at all, except that it happened, he blurted it all out. He had stayed in his study while Stanley busied herself with their supper. He had stayed there feigning work, because he dreaded to go out and pretend to a light and affectionate carelessness. But at last she called to him.

Typhoid Still A Vacation Menace

Avoid Contaminated Drinking Water and Foods This Summer

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DURING WARM weather outbreaks of typhoid fever will be reported throughout the country. It is probable that most of these epidemics will be traced to carelessness in the choice of drinking water and to the taking of contaminated food. Contaminated drinking water and sea foods obtained from condemned water supplies, constitute a menace to health and life. Fortunately, it is a decreasing menace.

Dr. Copeland

The dangers of typhoid fever cannot be overstated. It is a serious disease and unless recognized in its early stages leads to distressing consequences. We can be glad it is no longer the grave menace it was in former years when little was known of the real nature of this disease.

Many of you will recall the days when typhoid fever was a dreaded and all too common disease. Our soldiers in the Spanish-American war suffered more from the germs of typhoid fever than they did from the bullets of the enemy. Many a survivor continues to suffer from the lasting effects of the attack.

These experiences are in marked contrast to those of the soldiers in the recent World war who were protected against typhoid fever by inoculation with typhoid vaccine. This protective substance, known as the "triple vaccine", is given to soldiers and sailors, as well as to employes in the federal service who are located where typhoid fever is prevalent.

Vaccine Is a Preventive

The vaccine is always recommended for individuals who travel where the disease may be encountered. It should be given to all who live in a community in which typhoid fever has broken out, or where suspected cases repeatedly occur. It is a preventive measure and of great value to those who visit typhoid fever districts.

Although the administration of typhoid fever vaccine gives protection against the disease, it is difficult to convince everybody of the necessity of using it. This is particularly the case because the disease is not as prevalent as in former years.

Fortunately, the disease can also be prevented by the purification of water and careful inspection of all foods and food handlers. Persons employed in public places who come in contact with food, are required by law to be examined at periodic intervals. All those who harbor typhoid fever germs are a menace to a community. The danger is increased when they are employed in restaurants and bakeries. This danger can only be overcome by periodic and strict examination of all food handlers. I am glad to say this procedure is practiced in most progressive communities.

Careful inspection of food, as well as certain purity of the drinking and bathing water, is the only sure safeguard against the disease. During the summer months, if you are going away on a trip or are to travel through sections of the country where the sanitary condition of the water supply is doubtful, I strongly urge that you bear in mind the dangers I have described. Do not be misled by the idea that typhoid fever is a rare and unusual disease.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

That an athletic star entering motion pictures has more odds against him than would an unknown given the same chance is the opinion of Larry "Buster" Crabbe, who has the leading romantic role in Paramount's "Search for Beauty," which opens tonight at the Cliftona Theatre.

Crabbe is in a position to judge, for, as an athlete, he was an Olympic champion who set thirty-five swimming records, and, as an actor, he has appeared in four feature pictures during his year with Paramount.

"The first big handicap for an athlete who aspires to a screen career," opines Crabbe, "is the danger of being typed before he gets started.

Three States Voting For Hoover Okeh FDR Policy

Roosevelt's first week 2 to 1 lead shrinks to about a 3 to 2 ratio as nearly 200,000 votes are reported in the second week's tabulation of The Literary Digest's Nation-wide poll on the New Deal, the returns of which appear in tomorrow's issue of the magazine.

One hundred ninety-five thousand, four hundred fifty four votes are reported tallied this week. Of these 120,474 vote in favor of Roosevelt's policies and 74,890 vote against them.

In the first week's returns the President received a confidence vote of 66.19 per cent of the total ballots tallied while the current count reduces the affirmative vote in his favor to 61.64 per cent.

First votes from the six additional States of Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont are reported this week. Four of these States—Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont—voted for Hoover in 1932, and Connecticut, New Hampshire and Vermont are now shown in favor of the Rooseveltian acts and policies.

MAINE DISSENTS

Of the nine States so far reported, Maine is the only dissenter on the New Deal and votes against the President by the close majority of 50.87 per cent, with only 2,404 ballots tallied to date.

The shrinkage of votes favorable to the President is traceable largely to the returns from New York State. 91,740 votes, or nearly one-half of the entire returns, came from New York State and give the President a "Yes" vote of 63.59 per cent this week as compared to a 67.20 per cent. State vote last week.

Pennsylvania, which voted for Hoover in 1932, increases its approval for the New Deal giving the President 64.13 per cent of the 42,591 ballots counted now from the State as against 63.55 per cent the previous week.

Pennsylvania gives a larger "Yes" vote to the question "Do You Approve On the Whole the Acts and Policies of Roosevelt's First Year" than any other State from which returns have been received so far.

With 27,751 ballots now tallied from New Jersey, the President shows a slight gain in confidence of from 57.28 per cent last week to 58.16 per cent in the current tabulation.

Of those poll voters who voted for Roosevelt in the 1932 election 81.95 per cent approve his acts and policies while 18.05 per cent of his former adherents express disapproval.

U.S. PROGRAM

Consequently, it will be necessary to reduce the appraised value of land some-what and it will also be necesary to discover mistakes made by the Hog Growers in making out their contracts.

Several farmers have gone to the farm bureau office or to their township committeeman since the contracts were sent in and reported errors which means that a relatively large number of hogs have been taken off the contracts.

Farmers are urged to consult their records carefully to be sure the over-statement as to the number of hogs produced is reduced to the figure set by government officials, so that the final results can be certified to Washington for payment. The county board is not permitted to certify any figures to Washington until they are reduced to the quota established by the Government Officials.

Pickaway-co farmers should be congratulated, because of the fact that in so large a program, the percentage of error was held to a minimum. The majority of the counties adjoining Pickaway have a much higher percentage of error.

Goodyear has licked problem that baffled the tire industry—with the new "G-3". See it here!

IT TAKES a better tread to keep its grip on modern high-speed highways—with faster cars, quicker get-aways—more powerful brakes. All these strains grind away ordinary treads too fast.

But now we've got the answer! A tread that keeps its grip 43% longer—gives 43% more non-skid mileage. Grueling, grinding road tests show that it keeps its grip twice as long as competitive tires!

Read that list of extras in this new "G-3" All-Weather tire—and remember, you have to have "NON-SKID" before you can have "NON-SKID MILEAGE"—you have to have GRIP where you see it on this tire—in the center of the tread—if you want the extra miles of safety which you get in the "G-3". It costs no more!

CHOWS EDGE GIVEN TEAM

BULLETIN

President Frank Lynch, of the softball league, announced today that there will be a meeting of the managers of the eight teams in The Herald office immediately after tonight's game to determine the protest of the Given Oil Co. team.

Coming from far behind the Purina Chows overcame a long lead gained by the Given Oil Co. outfit and won by a 15-14 score in a recreation ball game Wednesday evening.

The Givens are protesting, however, on one of the strangest events we've ever seen in a ball game. With one run in and the tying run on third base Normie Coleman had popped for the first out. Hill, center-fielder, was at bat and swung at a third strike. He was called out by Jim Dade, back of the plate. Apparently the youth did not understand so walked back to the plate again and swung at the first ball popping it to Howard Greeno for another out. The umpire ruled the ball game was over.

Just what was correct was beyond most of the spectators.

EIGHT IN SECOND

The Givens took a commanding lead in the second inning tallying eight runs after they had scored one in the first. The Chows got busy in their half of the third counting four, adding one in the fifth and three in the sixth. In the meantime the colored team had increased its score to 13 at the end of the fifth inning.

The Chows went out to get one more in the seventh and three each in eighth and ninth.

Clayton Butler's line drive home run into right center field won the ball game for the Chows. Baucher started the final inning by singling but Dumm and Roby were both out leaving the tying run on third base. Bill Robinson hit the first ball pitched into center field scoring Baucher with the tying marker. Butler lined the ball over Squirrel Jones' head at second and into the far field for the circuit.

Bob Jones, leading off for his team in the ninth, crashed a long hit down the left field line. The blow was good for a triple but he scored when Barr dropped a perfect relay to the plate. Squirrel singled but died on Colemans pop and Hill's duplicate batting.

LOSERS HIT MOST

The Givens outhit the Purinas by a 19-14 margin.

Dade and Scott umpired.

Set for Memorial Day Classic

CANTLON TO DRIVE BIG MONEY WINNER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 24.—"Shorty" Cantlon, the quiet, midget-sized speedway ace from Detroit, will pilot one of the biggest money-winning cars along "Gasoline Alley" in the May 30 Grand Prix on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

His four-cylinder Miller Special, prominent in Indianapolis competition in the last four years, won no less than $60,000 during two of those seasons and, says "Shorty," it is groomed to add several more thousands to its record here on Memorial Day.

It's first appearance on the Indianapolis Speedway in 1930 netted second place for Bill White, then owner, with Cantlon at the wheel. Then in 1931 "Shorty" bought the mount from White and with "Howdy" Wilcox driving because Cantlon had suffered injury earlier that year, the car placed second again. Last Memorial Day motor trouble developed with the entry in third position.

But Cantlon says he has the trouble "licked" and hopes to get up in the first row positions again and bases his hopes on the all-important gasoline economy credited to four-cylinder motors.

"Shorty," who once raced motorcycles and started in automobile competition "because there wasn't any money in motorcycles," found his first break on the speedways 15 years ago when a friend got "cold feet" just before an important event.

"I worked hard all winter helping to build that car," Cantlon recalls, "and when my boss got cold feet at the last minute and refused to drive, I wasn't going to let all my work go to waste, so I got in and drove."

Racing in Darkness

Despite their terrific handicap, inmates of the Maryland School for the Blind, refuse to be kept out of athletics. During annual field day at Baltimore, blind runners, guided over the course by wire cables, turned in almost incredible performances. Here is Mansfield Kinsey winning 75-yard dash in 8-4/5 seconds.

SPENCER STOPS MILLER ATTACK

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 24.—Again challenging the right of the Minneapolis Millers to their present position as leaders in the American Association baseball race, the Columbus Red Birds today had defeated the Millers, 7 to 5, for the fifth consecutive time this season.

Clarence Heise held the Millers scoreless until the ninth inning, when they bunched five hits and scored five runs. At this point Heise was retired and Glen Spencer succeeded in stopping the league leaders cold. Nick Cullop and Gene Moore smashed out home runs for Columbus. The two teams will play the final game of the series today.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 24.—The St. Paul Saints today had defeated the Toledo Mud Hens, 4 to 3, in a ten-inning battle. The Saints tied up the game with a two-run rally in the ninth and in the tenth a double, a single a walk and a long fly scored the winning run.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

The collapse of the New York Yankee mound staff on its swing through the west has the American league greatly concerned * * * If the Yankees can be proved not the best in the league it means that the race is wide open for Washington, Detroit, Cleveland, Philadelphia and Boston * * * The St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox are probably the only outfits in the league not given a chance for the pennant * * *

The Yanks lost their fourth straight, Wednesday, with the Chicago White Sox blasting Ruffing and Desheng for 18 hits including three homers * *

Lefty Bob Grove has returned to form and defeated Cleveland, 7-5, Wednesday, by virtue of a three-run rally in the ninth frame—Detroit fell and so did Washington * *

Fanette followers of the Columbus Red Birds who were granted two days a week of their own at the Red Bird Stadium this year by President George M. Trautman will have an added incentive to attend Columbus baseball games when the Birds return on May 31 * * *

Starting with the next home stay, Trautman plans to name each Ladies Day after a specific player on the team and to present every fanette with a picture of the player. Friday, June 1, is to be Ray Blades Day while Monday, June 4, will be Mickey Heath Day. On these two days, Blades and Heath will be the featured players and each will serve as the official host on his day. Several gifts presented each Ladies Day to members of the audience will be personally given away by the individual player being honored * * *

At the end of the season, it is planned to give a special prize to the fanettes presenting a complete set of the players' pictures. Every Monday and Friday throughout the season will be a Ladies Day. Under this arrangement, the Red Bird schedule permits the issuance of the pictures of all regulars on the team plus those of at least six members of the pitching staff.

RESCUE THRILLER

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—Like the hero in an old-time movie thriller, S. D. Piessey, brakeman on the Santa Fe railroad, saved the life of eight-year-old Ellen Broyles. The girl was crossing a high trestle when a switch engine appeared. The engineer was unable to stop in time to keep from striking her. Piessey, riding on the front footboard, leaned over, grasped the girl and pulled her to safety.

Mayflower As Cabaret

WASHINGTON — The "Mayflowers," for 27 years official yacht of the Presidents, is returning to Washington once more. Perhaps Presidents will again board it, but if they do it will be for a different reasons than heretofore. The stately yacht will be converted into a cabaret.

The Agriculture Department was delighted. A Special Committee on Trapping Woodpeckers in the yard of the Secretary of the Treasury was appointed. The Committee moved on the scene of action. But promptly it encountered difficulties.

The limb on which the woodpeckers put on their drumming act was not strong enough to sustain a man long enough to set a trap.

What to do? They could not shoot the birds. And they could not trap them. For sometime the Committee cogitated. No results. Finally, it got a break.

Morgenthau was called out of town. The Committee hesitated no longer.

Next morning the two aerial machine-gunners were shot. When a few days later Morgenthau returned to the Capital and found that he was no longer disturbed, he wrote a little note of appreciation to the Department for its success in solving the problem of how to trap the two birds.

Probably not until he reads this, will Young Henry realize that his woodpeckers are not still drumming happily on a new Government-supplied homestead.

Drug Racket

The State and Treasury Departments have received some amazing reports on the growth of the opium trade in Manchuria since Japanese occupation.

According to these reports, the sale and use of narcotics has increased tremendously since the Japanese took over this part of China. No police restrictions are placed against the drug, and most of the opium dens are run by Japanese.

One of the reasons for the Japanese conquest of Jehol, adjacent to Manchuria, was to get the revenue from its lucrative opium trade.

Merry-Go-Round

Congressional mail bags are bringing in the second largest food of the current season. This time it concerns armaments. Thousands of persons are writing their congressmen and senators demanding support for proposals to curb the international traffic in arms and munitions . . . The largest volume of mail was stirred up by the Wall Street lobby against the Administration's Stock Exchange Control Bill . . . President Roosevelt is a real movie fan. Since he has been in the White House over 90 feature pictures, 75 "short subjects" and more than 500 reels of news have been shown on the executive mansion's private screen . . . This is many times more than all the pictures displayed during the Hoover and Coolidge incumbencies . . . Indian Commissioner John Collier, who is waging a bitter fight to put through a bill that will restore to the Redman a large share of economic freedom, was once General Secretary of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures . . . Collier gave up a high social welfare post in California to take up the fight for Indian rights and has been at it since 1920.

Milton Handler, young, brilliant counsel of the National Labor Board, plans to return soon to his teaching job at Columbia Law School. Handler has been bitterly disappointed over the failure of the White House to get wholeheartedly behind the Wagner Labor Disputes Bill, on which he spent many months of work.

Victim of Mailed Bomb

One of the two victims of the bomb that exploded in the Washington dead letter postoffice, Myrton Genung, postal worker whose hand was blown almost off, is shown receiving treatment in hospital. Inset, a postal inspector examines fragments of the infernal machine which had been concealed in hollowed-out book.

"HUMAN FLY" COP

BOSTON—Patrolman C. M. Walker is known as the "human fly" of the Boston police Department. During the past two years, he has rushed fifteen times to the call of distracted parents whose children, in some way or other, become trapped behind locked doors. In some cases Walker had to climb up the outsides of buildings to release children locked in bathrooms.

TOT ATE GOLDFISH

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—A broad grin was the only noticeable effect Bobby Perkins, 14 months old, showed after eating live goldfish from a bowl belonging to his mother, Mrs. Frank D. Perkins. When she found him he was holding the tail of one of the fish in his hand. The head and body had disappeared, as had several other fish that were in the bowl.

MAKES YOU LOSE UNHEALTHY FAT

A young woman of Norwich, Conn., writes: "I lost 16 lbs. with my first bottle of Kruschen. Being on night duty it was hard to sleep days but now since I am taking Kruschen I sleep plenty, eat as usual and lose fat, too."

To take off fat—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but little—get it at any drugstore in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the SAFE and HARMLESS way to lose fat—your money gladly returned.

Don't accept anything but Kruschen if you want to reduce safely.

NO WORRIES ON MEMORIAL TRIP

"There is nothing to worry about."

For this reason—because one record-low price covers the entire transaction—many local people are making reservations for the Baltimore and Ohio all-expense tour to Washington over Memorial Day. The trip is sponsored by this newspaper in connection with the B. & O.

From the time you get aboard one of the Baltimore and Ohio trains on Tuesday, May 29, until you alight at the end of the journey on Saturday, June 2, everything is taken care of for you. Not a single detail calls for the payment of a penny; not a single detail concerning plans or arrangement is left to worry the traveler.

To all intents and purposes, you are a guest of the 103 year old railroad system, one of the world's greatest, by the way. You will be a member of a large party yet individual attention will be given to your every want and whim.

MEALS IN DINER

Excellent meals will be served you in the B. & O. diner, than which there is nothing superior. The maximum coach accommodation will be 40 in 80-passenger cars.

When you reach Washington, you will call the New Colonial Hotel your home, where good meals and attractive rooms will be provided. All the sights of the Capital—and there are almost too many for enumeration—will be ready for you, with all necessary transportation, transfer of baggage, tips, sight-seeing trips, etc., provided.

Everything has been planned for your comfort, your convenience, your supreme enjoyment. Hence it is not at all surprising that so many local people are "talking up" this Memorial Day Tour, and that so many are making reservations.

Complete information will be cheerfully furnished at our office, where reservations also may be made. The entire cost of this all-expense tour is only $29.00, which should supply the biggest dollar's worth of travel, entertainment, and education ever offered you.

Time is growing short and quick action is advised.

Writes, Directs Play for Seniors

Above is shown E. K. Povenmire, of the high school faculty, who is the author and director of "Buttered Side Down," a three-act comedy to be presented at the high school auditorium tonight and tomorrow night, Thursday and Friday, May 24th and 25th.

The stage set for the play was designed by Mr. Povenmire and built by members of the senior class. The costumes and properties are also being furnished by members of the cast.

FIFTY-FIRST YEAR. NUMBER 113 — CIRCLEVILLE, OHIO, THURSDAY, MAY 24, 1934 — THREE CENTS

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Roosevelt is Physically Weary Under Strain of New Deal Details

WASHINGTON — Behind the President's desire to get Congress off his hands early in June are—above all—two things.

One is the fact that he is tired.

The other is his belief that what the country needs is less uncertainty regarding its future course. With Congress out of the way, Roosevelt feels that business, agriculture and his own administrators can dig in at the job of putting into effect the mass of new Congressional legislation.

This latter would be more easily possible were it not for the fact that a lot of New Deal administrators begin groping in the dark the minute the Man at the Helm is a stone's throw away from Washington. And this summer he will be enroute to Hawaii.

This situation remains the weakest link in the Roosevelt Administration. Without the Man in the White House, the cabinet members, the recovery agencies and the other New Dealers get out of tune. There is no correlating agency.

This again is one reason the President is so tired. Enough detail comes across his desk to swamp any two men. He has not delegated enough responsibility. And when you look at some of the men to whom he should delegate it, you can understand why.

This also is one reason Roosevelt has vacillated recently. He is too tired, too rushed, to go into everything carefully—and too anxious to get Congress off his hands.

Sooner or later Roosevelt is going to have to hire some new help.

Representative Charles A. Eaton, New Jersey Republican: "What size shoes does the gentleman wear?"

Representative Marion A. Zioncheck, youthful first-termer from the State of Washington: "No. 9, and I am proud of it. It is a plain answer. I do not try to evade any question. What size do you wear?"

Eaton: "No. 10, and I am proud of it. If the gentleman's head was as big as his feet he would amount to something."

Mississippi Hot-Spot

The national hot-spot is going to Mississippi in more ways than the weather this summer. During the month of August a lot of political attention will be focused on it.

At that time will be decided the three-cornered race for the Senate between Hubert Stephens, the incumbent; ex-Governor Theodore A. Bilbo, and Representative Ross Collins, one of the foremost members of the House.

Stephens probably will be counted out early, leaving the chief race between Bilbo and Collins.

Bilbo was for some time employed on a $6,000 a year job clipping papers for the AAA.

Ross Collins, as chairman of the House Committee on War Department Appropriations, runs the Army more than any other civilian, has forced the generals to cast aside sabre and saddle and adopt modern weapons of war. His fight for the purchase of the Gutenberg Bible and the Czar's liberary was used against him in the Mississippi Bible Belt, but culminated in an important cultural contribution to the Library of Congress.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau is a country gentleman and a nature lover. He is particularly fond of birds.

But the two woodpeckers which took to drumming each morning just outside his window strained even his patience with feathered friends.

After putting up with them for a while Young Henry finally appealed to the Agriculture Department. Would the Department please send around an expert to look into the problem of woodpeckers at 5 a. m.?

Morgenthau emphasised that he did not want the birds shot. But he would appreciate greatly their

B. WHITLOCK, WAR FIGURE, DEAD AT 65

WAS TOLEDO MAYOR

Became Famous as U. S. Minister to Belgium

CANNES, France, May 24.—Brand Whitlock, famous American diplomat and author, died here today following an operation.

Whitlock was 65 years old.

An ambassador to Belgium during the World War he gained a place among the world's most famous diplomats.

As a former mayor of Toledo, O., he was known as one of the most capable municipal executives in the United States.

As an author of many novels, short stories and other works he achieved a permanent place in world literature.

TRIED TO SAVE NURSE

One of the outstanding incidents in Whitlock's career was his unsuccessful attempt to save the life of Edith Cavell, the British nurse who was executed by a German military court as a spy.

Whitlock was born in Urbana, O., March 4, 1869. He was a newspaper reporter in Toledo and later in Chicago where he was a contemporary of George Ade, James Whitcomb Riley, finally Peter Dunne and other famous authors. He studied law and was admitted to the Illinois bar. Later he practiced law in Toledo.

Whitlock was operated upon several months ago and had been in poor health since then. He remained at the hospital recuperating for a second operation from which he failed to rally today. Both operations were to relieve a prostatic condition. His wife was at his bedside.

"We Gave Them What They Had Been Dishing," Says Ranger of Barrow Case

BY RAY BUMGARDNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

ARCADIA, La., May 24.—Bonnie Parker, the girl who smoked big black cigars and wrote bad poetry, and her desperado lover, Clyde Barrow, had a premonition that they would meet sudden and violent ends.

Relatives of the long-hunted pair, who were shot and killed by four quick shooting Texas officers and a Louisiana sheriff and his deputy yesterday, said today that Bonnie and Barrow had often predicted just such a death as they encountered.

Only a few months ago, the 23-year-old Bonnie penned these lines in her last poetic effusion:

"Some day they will go down together, and they will bury them side by side.

"To a few it means grief, to the law it's relief, but it's death to Bonnie and Clyde."

BEYOND IMAGINATION

It is doubtful, however, whether even their most phophetic imaginings gave either the arrogant, boastful Barrow or his hard-boiled girl friend an accurate picture of the completeness and awful certainty of their passing.

The pair's relatives were agreed that the officers who ambushed them might have given them more of a fighting chance.

To this, Captain Frank Hamer, formerly of the Texas rangers, who is considered one of the foremost peace officers in the southwest, replied:

"We just gave them some of the stuff they've been dishing out. We set a trap and they walked into it. But we gave them a chance—called on them to halt, but they reached for guns. I never discuss a case I'm working on before, during or after its conclusion."

U.S. PROGRAM AIDS FARMERS $539,006.30

State Board of Review Announces Sum Allowed to Pickaway-Co.

Benefits to Pickaway-co from the corn and hog program will total $539,006.30, according to Guy Dowdy, county agricultural agent.

Figures released from the state Board of Reviews credited Pickaway-co with 15,019 acres of corn contracted land. The State Board of Reviews has granted an average of 40.6 bushels per acre on the contracted land in the county. This means that 30 cents per bushel, less the cost of administration, will be paid on 608,771 bushels of corn that would have been raised on the contracted land. The benefit payments covering all corn land is $182,631.30.

The State Board of Review has granted Pickaway-co farmers an average of 95,033 hogs marketed per year for the contract figures. This total is to be reduced by 25 per cent which means that the farmers signing corn-hog contracts will cut the hog production 23,758 head in 1934 under the 1932-33 average which will enable these contract signers to sell 71,271 hogs in 1934. At $5 per head, benefit payment, there will be paid Pickaway-co farmers, $356,375, less the cost of Administration. The total benefit payments for both corn and hog payments will therefore amount to $539,006.30.

OVER ESTIMATE

When the campaign was first started, it was estimated that the benefit payments to his county would amount to $465,000, provided every farmer signed a contract. It now appears that this amount will be increased by $74,000. This is due to the fact that the number of hogs produced and the yields of corn during the last two years were greater than anticipated by Government Officials.

At the time the corn-hog program was started, the Processing Tax was established at a figure which would pay Pickaway-co farmers $465,000. However, they have been liberal in their findings and will set aside a larger amount which is based upon figures furnished by Surveys made in the county.

There is still considerable work to be done before the final report can be certified to Washington. The contracted land appraisement in the county was several bushels per acre more than that granted by the State Board of Review. Also the number of hogs marketed by the Contract signers is about 9 per cent higher than the amount allowed by the governments quota.

DELINQUENT TAXES $87,436 IN COUNTY

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24.—Delinquent and uncollected taxes in Pickaway-co, including state and local levies, totaled $87,436 according to a report made public today by the Census Bureau of the department of commerce.

The Pickaway-co figures were part of a tabulation of tax delinquency for the entire state of Ohio.

The uncollected and delinquent taxes in Pickaway-co represent 12.5 per cent of the total tax levy for the county, the census bureau reported. This levy was $688,930, on the basis of a property assessment of $46,824,115.

For the same period delinquent and uncollected taxes for the entire state totaled $50,525,635, or 25 per cent of the total levy, which was $202,250,897, on the basis of a total assessment in the state of $10,032,442,002.

The figures are the result of a compilation made by the division of real estate taxation of the census bureau and includes all town and city levies, the commerce department reported.

The tax delinquency figures, commerce department tax experts pointed out, are valuable as indicating which areas had suffered most from the depression. It was pointed out that rural and mountainous sections of the state had far higher rates of delinquency than manufacturing sections, despite the higher assessment in the latter section.

Renick Dunlap To Be In Gathering; Good Ticket Sale Is Reported.

Friday is expected to be a "red letter" day in the still tender life of the Pickaway-co Young Republican club. Its initial project, a rally to permit local Republicans to get acquainted with state candidates, is scheduled Friday at 6:30 p. m. at "The Old Barn" of the Pickaway Country club.

A good demand for tickets has been reported by Miss Hulda Redd in charge of their distribution. Others selling tickets are Sterling Lamb, Hildeburn Jones, Miss Hilda Burns and Mack Parrett, Jr.

Anyone who has no means of getting there will be furnished transportation if they notify Miss Redd by calling 137.

Candidates for state offices who will be here for the occasion are Clarence J. Brown, Dan Morgan, C. Nelson Sparks and John C. Elden for governor; Ralph Emmons and George C. Braden for secretary of state and Tom White, of Fairfield-co, candidate for congress. Others are expected but have not confirmed their reservations.

Renick W. Dunlap, former assistant secretary of agriculture, will also be a guest. Mr. Dunlap has been mentioned as a candidate for congress but has not yet announced his decision.

A musical program has been arranged by Miss Burns.

RURAL PLANS TO BE AIRED

Meeting Called This Evening At Weiler's Office; Renick Is Appointed.

A meeting to discuss plans for Pickaway-co's part in the rural recovery program will be held Thursday evening in the office of E. W. Weiler, relief director, with township leaders, county commissioners and others to attend.

Former Mayor Henry C. Renick has been appointed temporary rural recovery supervisor by H. H. Hughes, director of the state rural recovery program. He has started his work.

The county has been allotted $1,000, Weiler reports, for the rural program for the remainder of May. An effort will be made to spend this money on worthwhile work.

Mr. Weiler also reported Thursday that he has been granted $320 additional money from the government under the "works division" of the FERA and that landscaping work at Berger hospital will be completed with this fund.

Fifteen men have been assigned to the job and were expected to go to work this afternoon.

Persons in rural sections who have land or vacant houses to rent should register their properties at Weiler's office in the Bales building, the relief director said Thursday.

The land and the residences will be used for indigent families in rural sections only.

ITALY AGAIN GOAL OF PAIR

Pond and Sabelli Take Off From Dublin Airport On 1250 Mile Trip.

CARDIFF, Wales, May 24.—George R. Pond and Cesare Sabelli, American aviators, arrived here at 1:05 p. m. (8:05 A. M. E. D. T.) after a flight from Port Talbot, Wales. They had been forced down at Port Talbot earlier by engine trouble after a flight from Baldonnel field, Dublin.

The aviators intend to remain here until necessary repairs are made to permit continuation of their projected flight to Rome.

DUBLIN, May 24.—Resuming their flight from New York to Rome, George R. Pond and Cesare Sabelli, American flyers, hopped off from Baldonnel airport at 6:33 a. m. today to attempt a non-stop trip to the Italian capital.

The airmen expected to make the 1250-mile flight in about 12 hours, which would bring them down at their destination about 6:30 p. m. B. S. T. (1:30 p. m. E. D. T.) Their route lay across the Irish Sea, England, the English channel, and France to Italy.

Carrying 500 gallons of gasoline, Pond and Sabelli made a perfect take-off after a long run of 600 yards. Weather conditions were perfect.

Abandoning a previous plan to stop at London, the flyers said they would stop at Croydon airdrome, near London, only in the event of a recurrence of the motor trouble which forced them down at Lahinch, on Ireland's west coast, on their hop from New York last week.

A large representation of the Irish Free State air force personnel was out on the field early to bid the Americans farewell. Both Pond and Sabelli thanked Captain Quinn for the efficient manner in which his mechanics had repaired their plane at Lahinch.

NEITHER SERIOUS

School Man's Auto in W. Mound-st Accident

Two persons, Ruby Chalfin, 14, and Mrs. Pearl Mitchell, 49, colored, were suffering Thursday from injuries they received at nearly the same time Wednesday at different places.

Miss Chalfin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Chalfin, E. Main-st, is in bed with painful back and hip injuries after a swing on which she was riding during a freshman picnic at Dewey park broke. She fell to the ground.

The injured girl was taken to the office of Dr. C. E. Bowers where she was treated. Although no bones were broken she is suffering from painful bruises.

She was removed from Dr. Bowers' office to the home of her parents.

COLLAR-BONE BROKEN

Mrs. Mitchell, E. Mill-st, had a broken collar-bone which she suffered when she stepped into the path of the automobile of John G. Barton, superintendent of the Scioto-twp school, Commercial Point, on W. Mound-st during the recreation ball game at 7 p. m. Wednesday.

The woman, reported slightly hard of hearing, stepped from the side of the road in front of Barton's machine and was struck by the right front headlight. She was knocked to the pavement and rolled over. It was fortunate for her that Barton, who according to witnesses, was not driving fast. He was able to stop his automobile while she was still under the car.

Mrs. Mitchell was taken into the residence of Donald Morris, opposite whose home the accident happened, and was removed from there to Berger hospital where she was treated by Dr. Lloyd Jonnes.

She was expected to be returned home today.

The school superintendent was accompanied by his wife and two children.

GREENVILLE, May 24.— Held under indictments returned late yesterday by the Darke-co grand jury, Cassius Chandler, 23, and his brother, Erwin, 20, today awaited arraignment tomorrow on the charges of first degree murder and the burglary of an inhabited dwelling.

The indictments were returned against the brothers in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Belle Harter, 77-year-old tobacco stripper. According to officials, the Chandlers have confessed to the killing in a signed statement.

Mrs. Harter was found dead, her unclothed body lashed to her bed, in her home at New Madison last Monday. The Chandlers were picked up the following day at Terre Haute, Ind., in a stolen automobile.

While admitting the slaying, according to officers, the youths denied attacking the aged woman.

TROOPS BREAK TOLEDO SIEGE

STRIKERS DISBAND

No One Killed in Night's Brisk Rioting

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Charles P. Taft, of Cincinnati, son of the late President Taft, today was appointed a special mediator of the labor department to attempt settlement of a series of strikes now prevailing in Toledo, O. He is now enroute to that city.

TOLEDO, May 24.—Charging up Champlian avenue with fixed bayonets, Ohio National guardsmen today raised the 24 hour siege of the Toledo Electric Auto-lite plant, driving before their gleaming blades a remnant of the strike crowd of 7,000 which had tried all night with bullets and bricks to storm the plant and reach 1,500 trapped employees.

The soldiers arrived shortly after 6 a. m. sloshing determinedly through the cold rain. They met with no resistance. A rain-tamed crowd of several hundred including early rising spectators fled precipitately before the threatening bayonets.

ESCORTED FROM AREA

The 1,500 weary workers, 500 of them women, were removed from the factory and escorted out of the riot area by the troops. The soldiers, in command of Major General Ludwig Conelly, established a blockade around the plant, and established barricades against the possibility or renewed rioting.

The guardsmen had been mobilized to disperse the beseigers at the request of Sheriff David Kreiger, who is understood to have telephoned the governor's office in Columbus that the situation was out of control.

Almost miraculously, the rioting had claimed no lives, but scores were injured, two seriously. Peter Repinger, 50, who drove past the plant during one of the almost continuous assaults by the mob, was taken to a hospital after a tear gas bomb struck him in the face. Patrolman Casimir Wawrzyniak was struck in the foot by a bomb when the beseiged deputies fired by mistake into a group of police and firemen. One girl, Stella Johnson, telephone and switchboard operator at the plant, was wounded in the arm by a bullet. Her wound was not serious.

A. T. & T. NEXT FOR SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The Senate interstate commerce committee today prepared to decide whether a searchlight will be directed into the affairs of the largest public utility in the world.

Senator Dill (D) of Washington, lifetime foe of utility monopolies, sought a committee decision on his resolution authorizing a Senate investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., which operates the world's biggest telephone and telegraph services.

As the committee began its session, there was evidence of A. T. and T. pressure to prevent the inquiry, Senator Dill said.

WORK ON MEMBERS

"Company representatives have talked to a number of members of the committee and they even sent men to work on me," Dill asserted.

His resolution would direct the committee or any duly authorized subcommittee to conduct the inquiry and to report to the Senate the facts ascertained with recommendations for such legislation as the committee deems desirable. A maximum appropriation of $25,000 would finance the investigation.

One of the most important subjects for inquiry would be what the resolution describes as "methods whereby the company or its subsidiaries or affiliates or its officers or directors have sought through propaganda, or the expenditure of money or the control of channels of publicity, to influence or control public opinion or elections."

HICKMAN TO DENY GUILT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24.—Millard R. Hickman, 45, wealthy shipping official, will appear in court today and plead not guilty to charges that he criminally attacked and murdered pretty Louise Jeppesen, 23, of Ogden, Utah, in a lonely tunnel in Golden Gate park here early Sunday, May 13.

Defense Attorney Harry McKenzie declared his private investigators have discovered "important evidence."

"An attendant of a riding stable near the scene of his heinous crime has revealed that he was awakened at approximately the time of the murder," McKenzie said.

"He told us he heard two men talking. He heard one say, 'this would be a good place.' Then the stableman called out, 'who are you and what do you want.'

"The two men, he said, ran away."

The defense contends that the titian-haired Utah beauty was the victim of moron prowlers in the park; that Hickman was not near the park on the morning of May 13, but was entertaining Miss Blanche McKay, a pretty blonde, in his hotel suite.

TEEGARDINS BULLS GO TO AUSTRALIA

C. B. Teegardin & Sons, local Polled Shorthorn breeders, have shipped two members of their 1933 show herd to Douglas Munro, Gundibri, Merriwa, New South Wales, Australia.

Mr. Munro personally visited the herds of the United States early this spring and selected 10 head that he regarded as the best obtainable, from which he plans to build a herd of this breed. He is one of the leading ranchmen of Australia and his main ranch contains over 600,000 acres.

From the Teegardin herd, he selected the bull Oakwood Resolution, a championship winner at the 1933 International Livestock exposition, and a many times champion at the leading shows of 1932 and 1933. It is of note that this bull is a son of Oakwood Rodney, 1929 International Grand Champion bull, sold in 1930 for export to Uruguay, South America.

The other animal purchased was a female, Oakwood Golden Glow, who headed her class as a yearling heifer at the 1933 International Live Stock exposition.

Promptly upon selling Oakwood Resolution to Mr. Munro, the Teegardins purchased Highland Stamp in Illinois, one of the outstanding bulls of the country, but a cablegram from Wright, Stevenson and Company of New Zealand made them such an attractive offer on this bull that he has been sold to them for one of their clients. He will go forward with the Munro cattle from Chicago and embark from Los Angeles.

The trip from Chicago will require 50 days to reach Australia.

"We Gave Them What They Had Been Dishing"

Hamer is a veteran of 52 gunbattles with smugglers and is considered a remarkable shot. Deputy Sheriffs Ted Hinton and Bob Alcorn and State Highway Patrolman B. M. Gault, a former ranger, were the Texas officers with Hamer and all had proven their mettle in previous encounters with the lawless. The Louisiana officers were Sheriff Henderson Jordan of Bienville parish and his deputy, Oakley.

Hopelessly trapped by the officers as they drove their Ford coupe toward their farmhouse hideaway in the waste lands around Gibsland, Bienville parish, the two veterans of innumerable gun battles and narrow escapes were riddled with no less than 50 machine gun and rifle bullets.

At the Arcadia morgue where the bodies were taken last night it was said that almost three pounds of lead had been pumped into the pair and that their faces had been disfigured almost beyond recognition.

Most of the wounds were found to be in the heads and chests.

Relatives of both Barrow and the Parker girl in the southwest were grief-stricken and indignant today—the former because of their deaths, the latter because of the manner of their passing.

Billie Parker Mace, Bonnie's sister, who is being held on a murder charge in the Tarrant county jail at Fort Worth, Texas, went bitterly when she learned of the shooting.

Since her incarceration several months ago, Billie's chief concern has been not her own, but her sister's fate.

MURDERED GUARD

She is charged with complicity in the murder of Major Crowson, a guard at the Eastham state prison farm, who was shot and killed presumably by Clyde and Bonnie as they were delivering Henry Methvin and Raymond Hamilton, Barrow's former pal, from the institution.

Barrow's aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barrow, who operate a filling station on the outskirts of West Dallas, were grief stricken when told the news. Mrs. Barrow was inconsolable and said she would go to Arcadia today to claim her son's body.

Bonnie's mother likewise was overcome.

None of the officers was inclined to discuss today how the information concerning the Gibsland hideout of the outlaw pair was obtained.

For more than six weeks Hamer and his associates have scouted the waste lands around Gibsland knowing that sooner or later Barrow and his girl would put in an appearance at their farmhouse hideway.

When the time came early yesterday the officers were ready with a well laid trap—the roads were bottled up and the officers were carefully ambushed behind thick brush.

When the dust covered car, which Barrow had driven for many months, hove into sight it was moving at a moderate speed.

According to the story told by Hamer's deputies, one of the officers stepped into the road to flag the car. Barrow immediately applied his brakes and both he and Bonnie reached for their guns.

Both came up with weapons in their hands and as they did so the five concealed officers laid down a deadly barrage of machine gun rifle fire, the bullets ripping through the front of the car.

NEITHER FIRED SHOT

As Barrow's hand slipped from the wheel the car careened slowly to a stop against a dirt embankment on the right side of the road.

Both Clyde and Bonnie were dead as the officers peered into the riddled automobile, their bodies jarred into grotesque postures as the car struck the embankment.

Thus ended the careers of the most ruthless killer the southwest has known in modern times and his quick-shooting girl pal.

For two hours or more the bodies were left lying in the car. Then a tow car came and hauled the machine, with the bodies still in it, through Gibsland to Arcadia.

In both towns thousands lined the streets seeking a view of the killers.

IN LINE OF DUTY

Dr. J. L. Wade, Arcadia coroner, rendered his verdict at the scene of the killing, i. e., "Death by gunfire from officers in the line of their duty."

At a late hour last night it was said that funeral arrangements had not been made for either Clyde or Bonnie, but it was expected the bodies would be shipped to Dallas, there to be claimed by relatives, tonight or tomorrow.

were mobilized shortly after midnight.

The rioting grew out of the strike of Auto-Lite employes belonging to the United Automobile Workers Union. It was late yesterday afternoon that the usual sporadic disorders of a picket line developed into a mass attack on the factory.

Deputy sheriffs, rushed into the plant under the leadership of Sheriff Kreiger, found themselves imprisoned within the factory. Outside, raging at the gates and bombarding the plant with bricks and stones, stormed a mob which grew rapidly from 1,000 to 6,000 or 7,000.

The deputies set up machine guns at the plant gates, but as far as could be learned by those outside, only tear gas guns were fired by the defending forces. Police threw a cordon about the entire area, but could do no more than attempt to control the fringes of the crowd. Several policemen were injured by the barrages of tear gas from the factory walls.

Firemen, charging into the riot area when rioters set fire to two automobiles, were mistaken for attackers and were sent choking and gasping beyond the firing line.

Throughout the night, the strike area presented a picture of actual warfare. Groups of rioters surged about the plant, now and then attempting to rush the gates, only to be beaten back by booming tear gas bombs and the threatening muzzles of machine guns. All lights in the district were extinguished or smashed early in the evening except the blue lamps on the top floor of the big factory. These glowed through the rain, flickering now and then as a brick crashed through one of the upper windows.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 3 pints of fluid a day which contains 4 pounds of waste matter.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

Censorship Relaxed

AN easing of the German press censorship has been announced by the reich's minister of propaganda. Dr. Joseph Goebbels. New regulations relating to newspapers have been issued.

The changes made come far from restoring the liberty of the press, but they do relax somewhat the severe restrictions that had been imposed under the Hitler regime. Henceforth the newspapers themselves will be free to report public meetings, "unless important considerations demand otherwise;" the publication of speches in official text is not compulsory, except in special cases; editorials are allowed, editorial writers being permitted to give their own viewpoints "as far as possible within the scope of the press law."

It is interesting to note that among the factors that caused the government to relax the censorship was the serious falling off in circulation of newspapers. Thus, one of the main purposes of the censorship—the spreading of Nazi propaganda—was being defeated. If the newspapers had no readers, the government could not get its propaganda before the public in the form of "news matter." A publication that is only the organ of the propaganda medium of a political organization is of no value as a newspaper, and the public usually is quick to find this out.

The new regulations do not mean a lifting of the censorship. They are chiefly important as showing that the government is beginning to recognize that censorship can be carried too far, even from its own standpoint.

How to Do It

TWO thousand slot machines dumped into the Atlantic ocean by New York city police just after the newly-enacted state anti-slot machine law went into effect seems a convincing answer to those who had argued that slot machines couldn't be abolished.

The new law makes it illegal to manufacture, own, store, possess, sell, rent, lease, let on shares, lend, give away, transport, operate or permit the operation of slot machines. Its language is plain. The act is aimed at slot machines, and seeks to make no distinction between those which may be regarded as gambling devices and others. Its definition of slot machines is all-inclusive. There are no loopholes.

It remains simply for the police authorities to do their part in order to rid the state of slot machines. This they can do by seizing and destroying such machines as fast as they are placed in operation, and even any which may not be in operation. The work is made easy by the simplicity of the law.

MINNEAPOLIS STRIKE RIOTS RENEWED

SYNOPSIS

Stanley Paige, beautiful, young society girl, is left penniless when her lawyer speculates with her money and loses. Stanley, however, cares little for the money, feeling that she has everything in the love of fascinating Drew Armitage. But when Drew breaks their engagement saying it would be impossible to marry on his income, she is heartbroken. Rather than accept aid from her wealthy friends, Stanley rents an inexpensive furnished room and disappears from her exclusive circle to try and make her own way. Her friends agree that a better way would have been to marry handsome Perry Deverest, but Stanley cannot forget Drew. Then, one day, she meets John Harmon Northrup, struggling young author. A strong friendship ensues and they become very necessary to one another. John Harmon is in love with Stanley but refrains from telling her because of Drew. As time passes, his kindness and consideration win Stanley's affection and they are married. Thinking only of Stanley's happiness, John Harmon makes an agreement with her that, if the time should ever come when they cannot give each other the wonderful companionship and understanding they have now, they must end their relationship. After three months of married life, Stanley is serenely happy, but John Harmon has become so necessary to her that she realizes, in order to preserve their happiness, she must have other interests to keep her from getting restless while he is writing. She applies for work in a bookshop.

CHAPTER THIRTY

An old man in a black skullcap aproached her, stared at her penetratingly from behind enormous horn-rimmed spectacles. He was little and wizened and his face had taken on the color of the yellowed pages of his books, but his eyes, like the words on their printed pages, were still remarkably clear and discerning.

"I saw your card," Stanley began a bit uncertainly.

"So?" the old man continued to stare at her.

"I would like the place." Stanley spoke abruptly, feeling that with this old person words were superfluous.

"Why?" His voice, like his stare, was even and penetrating. It seemed to brush aside trivialities, to get at the heart of things.

"Because I like books, because I want a job, because I want to belong somewhere, have some—vocation."

"You like books, but do you know anything about them?"

"Not much, but I could learn. I think I could learn very easily if you would bother."

A sudden twinkle disturbed the directness of the old man's stare. "Teaching people who wish to learn is never a bother; it is teaching fools that is a nuisance and a waste of time. The pay is small," he added abruptly, "and my customers are few—and not interested in pretty girls," he waited, watching her impartially.

"I would like the place," Stanley repeated, returning his gaze unwaveringly.

"Then come in the morning at nine. We will see how valuable you can make yourself to me. I am an old man, I do not like to use the stepladder, and in the early afternoon I walk in the park."

Outside the shop, she looked for a name, found it painted on a blackboard in faded gold letters, "Felix Rose—Books."

She turned and walked swiftly southward, her eyes bright, her hands deep in her pockets. She had a job, she had John Harmon. She would be away from him all day, but she would come back to him at night. The closed door would no longer shut her out, for she would not be there to be shut out; she would be on the other side of a door herself—the door of a dim and narrow bookshop.

John Harmon quietly accepted Stanley's announcement. She told him that night after they had had dinner on a shaky card table before the fire. It was characteristic of Stanley that she didn't try to explain and characteristic of John Harmon that he didn't need an explanation. As a matter of fact, he was conscious of a rather startling feeling of relief.

If John Harmon had seemed the same to Stanley in these weeks since their marriage, it was because he had compelled himself to seem the same; if he had rumpled his hair and laughed easily and spent long hours behind a closed door, it had been because it was natural for John Harmon to rumple his hair and laugh easily with Stanley and shut himself away from her when he wanted most desperately to be with her. He had compelled himself to do just this for a long time now and a habit, when motivated by an impulse as strong as this one which shielded Stanley from the full force of his love for her, was not easily put aside.

In his marriage John Harmon had found no release from his self-imposed restraint. He felt very humble about his happiness and very responsible. There were times when he could have wept over the sweetness of this thing that had happened to him and other times when he stood in shaking fear of it. He gave Stanley just what he thought she wanted from him—and kept his passion lashed to a mast. Had he loved her less, it would have been impossible. But because he loved her so much, so terribly much, he could shut himself up in his study but he could not write.

If Stanley, waiting impatiently in the room beyond, knew restlessness, John Harmon sitting slumped over his typewriter, knew despair. He had to write—and to write he had to lose his own identity, to become a mere automaton, an instrument of his inspiration; and just now with Stanley so near, with memories of her even nearer and more demanding, he could not lose any part of himself—he could not conjure up any inspiration. No longer could he wander in a world of imagery. He was himself. He was very much alive and vital in a world of reality—a world of devastating, confusing, rapturous realities.

But because John Harmon was in love with his craft and because he was intensely in love with Stanley and because he saw in his passion for her a threatening disaster to both of these beloved objects, he stayed in the room behind the closed door and wrote aimlessly, or not at all, and wondered where it would all end.

And then, miraculously, Stanley had gone. She was away from early morning till late afternoon. Once more John Harmon was alone—alone with his paper and his ink and his inspiration. No longer was he conscious of every movement in the outer room, no longer did every minute spent at his desk require an effort, no longer was there any need to try to forget that he had only to speak to summon her. She had gone and at night she would come back to him. Until then he could forget himself, forget Stanley. Once more he found that he could write. And with the undescribable joy that only the sensitively creative can ever know he fell upon his task and lost himself in it.

He was writing for a purpose now—not just for the joy of writing, not just for the satisfaction of expressing through the written word the thoughts that cried out to be expressed, but because his writing had suddenly become a definite part of his and Stanley's life together. It was less his craft and more his job—it must earn money for him, for them. And so he went at it furiously, even feverishly, and if he lost something in depth, he gained much in breadth, for his mind seemed very keen these days and very agile. He wrote rapidly and easily and sent out an amazing number of stories to Maynard.

Maynard read them and raised an eyebrow and fed them to his ever hungry magazines. They were good stuff, they would catch on, they were exceptionally clever—not what he had thought the boy would do, of course, but then Maynard was always seeing things in people and then being disappointed; he was always catching glimpses of the sort of thing he had wanted to do, before the public had caught him and broken him to her demands. He had thought that in those early stories young Northrup had sent in there had been a touch of genius, a rare quality of understanding, an awareness of beauty—in people, in nature, in the whole complicated fabric of life; but if it had been there, it was gone now. But the stuff was clever and it was good magazine fodder. It was the sort of thing the public liked in big doses, and it was Maynard's job to give it to them. He sighed a bit at that relinquishing of a faint hope; and wrote John Harmon good-sized checks.

And so it happened that John Harmon's name appeared frequently in print and the problem of money was no longer vital and he gave up the proof reading and gave himself over to the finishing of his novel. Maynard had promised to look at it if he could get it into shape for spring publication.

He had rewritten the first chapters, discarding the ones started during the summer, the ones conceived while he was still in Vermont. He thought of them as immature—too idealistic. He went at them again with a surer hand—drew in his characters with a bolder touch; in these new chapters everything was intensified, the mouths of the women were more red, their beauty more decisive, his men were cleaner-cut, more virile, with fewer of the finer nuances of character. Both the men and women talked more and thought less, they moved across the pages quickly, colorfully, they did things abruptly and well and with a great deal of nonchalance and well-bred indifference, and they did a tremendous number of things—fascinating, clever things—things people would like to read about.

John Harmon was satisfied. He worked fast until for some unexplainable reason he could not work at all—the whole thing seemed to collapse on his hands. He had gone so far and he could go no further. He had no more phrases, no more situations—no more anything. The manuscript ceased to be a book and became just scrawled pages of words, and John Harmon knew despair and restlessness and ugly black depression.

But being John Harmon, he kept it to himself, until one night when suddenly for no reason at all, except that it happened, he blurted it all out. He had stayed in his study while Stanley busied herself with their supper. He had stayed there feigning work, because he dreaded to go out and pretend to a light and affectionate carelessness. But at last she called to him.

Typhoid Still A Vacation Menace

Avoid Contaminated Drinking Water and Foods This Summer

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DURING WARM weather outbreaks of typhoid fever will be reported throughout the country. It is probable that most of these epidemics will be traced to carelessness in the choice of drinking water and to the taking of contaminated food. Contaminated drinking water and sea foods obtained from condemned water supplies, constitute a menace to health and life. Fortunately, it is a decreasing menace.

The dangers of typhoid fever cannot be overstated. It is a serious disease and unless recognized in its early stages leads to distressing consequences. We can be glad it is no longer the grave menace it was in former years when little was known of the real nature of this disease.

Many of you will recall the days when typhoid fever was a dreaded and all too common disease. Our soldiers in the Spanish-American war suffered more from the germs of typhoid fever than they did from the bullets of the enemy. Many a survivor continues to suffer from the lasting effects of the attack.

These experiences are in marked contrast to those of the soldiers in the recent World war who were protected against typhoid fever by inoculation with typhoid vaccine. This protective substance, known as the "triple vaccine", is given to soldiers and sailors, as well as to employes in the federal service who are located where typhoid fever is prevalent.

Vaccine Is a Preventive

The vaccine is always recommended for individuals who travel where the disease may be encountered. It should be given to all who live in a community in which typhoid fever has broken out, or where suspected cases repeatedly occur. It is a preventive measure and of great value to those who visit typhoid fever districts.

Although the administration of typhoid fever vaccine gives protection against the disease, it is difficult to convince everybody of the necessity of using it. This is particularly the case because the disease is not as prevalent as in former years.

Fortunately, the disease can also be prevented by the purification of water and careful inspection of all foods and food handlers. Persons employed in public places who come in contact with food, are required by law to be examined at periodic intervals. All those who harbor typhoid fever germs are a menace to a community. The danger is increased when they are employed in restaurants and bakeries. This danger can only be overcome by periodic and strict examination of all food handlers. I am glad to say this procedure is practiced in most progressive communities.

Careful inspection of food, as well as certain purity of the drinking and bathing water, is the only sure safeguard against the disease. During the summer months, if you are going away on a trip or are to travel through sections of the country where the sanitary condition of the water supply is doubtful, I strongly urge that you bear in mind the dangers I have described. Do not be misled by the idea that typhoid fever is a rare and unusual disease.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

That an athletic star entering motion pictures has more odds against him than would an unknown given the same chance is the opinion of Larry "Buster" Crabbe, who has the leading romantic role in Paramount's "Search for Beauty," which opens tonight at the Cliftona Theatre.

Crabbe is in a position to judge, for, as an athlete, he was an Olympic champion who set thirty-five swimming records, and, as an actor, he has appeared in four feature pictures during his year with Paramount.

"The first big handicap for an athlete who aspires to a screen career," opines Crabbe, "is the danger of being typed before he gets started.

Three States Voting For Hoover Okeh FDR Policy

Roosevelt's first week 2 to 1 lead shrinks to about a 3 to 2 ratio as nearly 200,000 votes are reported in the second week's tabulation of The Literary Digest's Nation-wide poll on the New Deal, the returns of which appear in tomorrow's issue of the magazine.

One hundred ninety-five thousand, four hundred fifty four votes are reported tallied this week. Of these 120,474 vote in favor of Roosevelt's policies and 74,890 vote against them.

In the first week's returns the President received a confidence vote of 66.19 per cent of the total ballots tallied while the current count reduces the affirmative vote in his favor to 61.64 per cent.

First votes from the six additional States of Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont are reported this week. Four of these States—Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont—voted for Hoover in 1932, and Connecticut, New Hampshire and Vermont are now shown in favor of the Rooseveltian acts and policies.

MAINE DISSENTS

Of the nine States so far reported, Maine is the only dissenter on the New Deal and votes against the President by the close majority of 50.87 per cent, with only 2,404 ballots tallied to date.

The shrinkage of votes favorable to the President is traceable largely to the returns from New York State. 91,740 votes, or nearly one-half of the entire returns, came from New York State and give the President a "Yes" vote of 63.59 per cent this week as compared to a 67.20 per cent. State vote last week.

Pennsylvania, which voted for Hoover in 1932, increases its approval for the New Deal giving the President 64.13 per cent of the 42,591 ballots counted now from the State as against 63.55 per cent the previous week.

Pennsylvania gives a larger "Yes" vote to the question "Do You Approve On the Whole the Acts and Policies of Roosevelt's First Year" than any other State from which returns have been received so far.

With 27,751 ballots now tallied from New Jersey, the President shows a slight gain in confidence of from 57.28 per cent last week to 58.16 per cent in the current tabulation.

Of those poll voters who voted for Roosevelt in the 1932 election 81.95 per cent approve his acts and policies while 18.05 per cent of his former adherents express disapproval.

U.S. PROGRAM

Consequently, it will be necessary to reduce the appraised value of land some-what and it will also be necesary to discover mistakes made by the Hog Growers in making out their contracts.

Several farmers have gone to the farm bureau office or to their township committeeman since the contracts were sent in and reported errors which means that a relatively large number of hogs have been taken off the contracts.

Farmers are urged to consult their records carefully to be sure the over-statement as to the number of hogs produced is reduced to the figure set by government officials, so that the final results can be certified to Washington for payment. The county board is not permitted to certify any figures to Washington until they are reduced to the quota established by the Government Officials.

Pickaway-co farmers should be congratulated, because of the fact that in so large a program, the percentage of error was held to a minimum. The majority of the counties adjoining Pickaway have a much higher percentage of error.

HOWS EDGE GIVEN TEAM

BULLETIN

President Frank Lynch, of the softball league, announced today that there will be a meeting of the managers of the eight teams in The Herald office immediately after tonight's game to determine the protest of the Given Oil Co. team.

Coming from far behind the Purina Chows overcame a long lead gained by the Given Oil Co. outfit and won by a 15-14 score in a recreation ball game Wednesday evening.

The Givens are protesting, however, on one of the strangest events we've ever seen in a ball game. With one run in and the tying run on third base Normie Coleman had popped for the first out. Hill, center-fielder, was at bat and swung at a third strike. He was called out by Jim Dade, back of the plate. Apparently the youth did not understand so walked back to the plate again and swung at the first ball popping it to Howard Greeno for another out. The umpire ruled the ball game was over.

Just what was correct was beyond most of the spectators.

EIGHT IN SECOND

The Givens took a commanding lead in the second inning tallying eight runs after they had scored one in the first. The Chows got busy in their half of the third counting four, adding one in the fifth and three in the sixth. In the meantime the colored team had increased its score to 13 at the end of the fifth inning.

The Chows went out to get one more in the seventh and three each in eighth and ninth.

Clayton Butler's line drive home run into right center field won the ball game for the Chows. Baucher started the final inning by singling but Dumm and Roby were both out leaving the tying run on third base. Bill Robinson hit the first ball pitched into center field scoring Baucher with the tying marker. Butler lined the ball over Squirrel Jones' head at second and into the far field for the circuit.

Bob Jones, leading off for his team in the ninth, crashed a long hit down the left field line. The blow was good for a triple but he scored when Barr dropped a perfect relay to the plate. Squirrel singled but died on Colemans pop and Hill's duplicate batting.

LOSERS HIT MOST

The Givens outhit the Purinas by a 19-14 margin.

Dade and Scott umpired.

GOODMAN WINS

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 24—Johnny Goodman, American open champion, came from behind on the finishing holes today to win his way past the fourth round of the British amateur golf championship, George Dunlap, New York, and Lawson Little, San Francisco, surviving with him.

Goodman, 1 down playing the fifteenth, finally squared his match against H. G. McCallum, Great Britain, and then won out on the first extra hole, by 1 up.

Lemonade has been added to the ration of the French navy. For the A. E. F. veterans it clears up a question of 15 years' standing: Who drinks French lemonade though?

Set for Memorial Day Classic

CANTLON TO DRIVE BIG MONEY WINNER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 24.—"Shorty" Cantlon, the quiet, midget-sized speedway ace from Detroit, will pilot one of the biggest money-winning cars along "Gasoline Alley" in the May 30 Grand Prix on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

His four-cylinder Miller Special, prominent in Indianapolis competition in the last four years, won no less than $60,000 during two of those seasons and, says "Shorty," it is groomed to add several more thousands to its record here on Memorial Day.

It's first appearance on the Indianapolis Speedway in 1930 netted second place for Bill White, then owner, with Cantlon at the wheel. Then in 1931 "Shorty" bought the mount from White and with "Howdy" Wilcox driving because Cantlon had suffered injury earlier that year, the car placed second again. Last Memorial Day motor trouble developed with the entry in third position.

But Cantlon says he has the trouble "licked" and hopes to get up in the first row positions again and bases his hopes on the all-important gasoline economy credited to four-cylinder motors.

"Shorty," who once raced motorcycles and started in automobile competition "because there wasn't any money in motorcycles," found his first break on the speedways 15 years ago when a friend got "cold feet" just before an important event.

"I worked hard all winter helping to build that car," Cantlon recalls, "and when my boss got cold feet at the last minute and refused to drive, I wasn't going to let all my work go to waste, so I got in and drove."

Racing in Darkness

Despite their terrific handicap, inmates of the Maryland School for the Blind, refuse to be kept out of athletics. During annual field day at Baltimore, blind runners, guided over the course by wire cables, turned in almost incredible performances. Here is Mansfield Kinsey winning 75-yard dash in 8-4/5 seconds.

SPENCER STOPS MILLER ATTACK

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 24.—Again challenging the right of the Minneapolis Millers to their present position as leaders in the American Association baseball race, the Columbus Red Birds today had defeated the Millers, 7 to 5, for the fifth consecutive time this season.

Clarence Heise held the Millers scoreless until the ninth inning, when they bunched five hits and scored five runs. At this point Heise was retired and Glen Spencer succeeded in stopping the league leaders cold. Nick Cullop and Gene Moore smashed out home runs for Columbus. The two teams will play the final game of the series today.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 24.—The St. Paul Saints today had defeated the Toledo Mud Hens, 4 to 3, in a ten-inning battle. The Saints tied up the game with a two-run rally in the ninth and in the tenth a double, a single a walk and a long fly scored the winning run.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

The collapse of the New York Yankee mound staff on its swing through the west has the American league greatly concerned * * * If the Yankees can be proved not the best in the league it means that the race is wide open for Washington, Detroit, Cleveland, Philadelphia and Boston * * * The St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox are probably the only outfits in the league not given a chance for the pennant * * *

The Yanks lost their fourth straight, Wednesday, with the Chicago White Sox blasting Ruffing and Deshong for 18 hits including three homers * *

Lefty Bob Grove has returned to form and defeated Cleveland, 7-5, Wednesday, by virtue of a three-run rally in the ninth frame—Detroit fell and so did Washington * *

Fanette followers of the Columbus Red Birds who were granted two days a week of their own at the Red Bird Stadium this year by President George M. Trautman will have an added incentive to attend Columbus baseball games when the Birds return on May 31 * * *

Starting with the next home stay, Trautman plans to name each Ladies Day after a specific player on the team and to present every fanette with a picture of the player. Friday, June 1, is to be Ray Blades Day while Monday, June 4, will be Mickey Heath Day. On these two days, Blades and Heath will be the featured players and each will serve as the official host on his day. Several gifts presented each Ladies Day to members of the audience will be personally given away by the individual player being honored * * *

At the end of the season, it is planned to give a special prize to the fanettes presenting a complete set of the players' pictures. Every Monday and Friday throughout the season will be a Ladies Day. Under this arrangement, the Red Bird schedule permits the issuance of the pictures of all regulars on the team plus those of at least six members of the pitching staff.

RESCUE THRILLER

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—Like the hero in an old-time movie thriller, S. D. Piessey, brakeman on the Santa Fe railroad, saved the life of eight-year-old Ellen Broyles. The girl was crossing a high trestle when a switch engine appeared. The engineer was unable to stop in time to keep from striking her. Piessey, riding on the front footboard, leaned over, grasped the girl and pulled her to safety.

Queens of Meet

These Ohio Wesleyan university co-eds will act as queens of the ninth annual Buckeye conference track and field meet to be held at Ohio Wesleyan, Delaware, Friday and Saturday of this week.

The girls will present medals to the winners of the various events, each of them being assigned to one particular team.

Harriette Hatch, Dearborn, Mich., and Jean Herbert, Cleveland both winners of beauty contests at Ohio Wesleyan two years in succession, are among the five. The others are Betty Hutchinson, Cleveland; Betty Jane Poulton, Dayton, and Betty Bigelow, Roselle Park, N. J.

In addition to Ohio Wesleyan, the competing teams are Miami university, Ohio university, University of Cincinnati and Marshall college.

Mayflower As Cabaret

WASHINGTON — The "Mayflower," for 27 years official yacht of the Presidents, is returning to Washington once more. Perhaps Presidents will again board it, but if they do it will be for a different reason than heretofore. The stately yacht will be converted into a cabaret.

Dog and Duck Pals

DENVER—Ozzie and Major are a strange pair—strange when you consider the supposed antipathy between dogs and ducks. For Major Ricks, a wire haired fox terrier belonging to Esther Manning, 15-year-old Denver girl, and Ozzie her pet duckling, are inseparable. Their owner is the daughter of J. A. Manning, federal narcotic agent in charge of the Denver office.

The Agriculture Department was delighted. A Special Committee on Trapping Woodpeckers in the yard of the Secretary of the Treasury was appointed. The Committee moved on the scene of action. But promptly it encountered difficulties.

The limb on which the woodpeckers put on their drumming act was not strong enough to sustain a man long enough to set a trap.

What to do? They could not shoot the birds. And they could not trap them. For sometime the Committee cogitated. No results. Finally, it got a break.

Morgenthau was called out of town. The Committee hesitated no longer.

Next morning the two aerial machine-gunners were shot. When a few days later Morgenthau returned to the Capital and found that he was no longer disturbed, he wrote a little note of appreciation to the Department for its success in solving the problem of how to trap the two birds.

Probably not until he reads this, will Young Henry realize that his woodpeckers are not still drumming happily on a new Government-supplied homestead.

Drug Racket

The State and Treasury Departments have received some amazing reports on the growth of the opium trade in Manchuria since Japanese occupation.

According to these reports, the sale and use of narcotics has increased tremendously since the Japanese took over this part of China. No police restrictions are placed against the drug, and most of the opium dens are run by Japanese.

One of the reasons for the Japanese conquest of Jehol, adjacent to Manchuria, was to get the revenue from its lucrative opium trade.

Merry-Go-Round

Congressional mail bags are bringing in the second largest flood of the current season. This time it concerns armaments. Thousands of persons are writing their congressmen and senators demanding support for proposals to curb the international traffic in arms and munitions . . . The largest volume of mail was stirred up by the Wall Street lobby against the Administration's Stock Exchange Control Bill . . . President Roosevelt is a real movie fan. Since he has been in the White House over 90 feature pictures, 75 "short subjects" and more than 500 reels of news have been shown on the executive mansion's private screen. . . . This is many times more than all the pictures displayed during the Hoover and Coolidge incumbencies . . . Indian Commissioner John Collier, who is waging a bitter fight to put through a bill that will restore to the Redman a large share of economic freedom, was once General Secretary of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures. Collier gave up a high social welfare post in California to take up the fight for Indian rights and has been at it since 1920.

Milton Handler, young, brilliant counsel of the National Labor Board, plans to return soon to his teaching job at Columbia Law School. Handler has been bitterly disappointed over the failure of the White House to get wholeheartedly behind the Wagner Labor Disputes Bill, on which he spent many months of work.

Development of a wingless breed of chickens is the goal of a Washington scientist. A long-suffering public would appreciate more a wingless mosquito.

Victim of [illegible]

One of the two victims of the bomb that exploded in the Washington [illegible] letter postoffice, Myrton Genung, postal worker whose hand was blown almost off, is shown receiving treatment in hospital. Inset, a postal inspector examines fragments of the infernal machine which had been concealed in hollowed-out book.

"HUMAN FLY" COP

BOSTON—Patrolman C. M. Walker is known as the "human fly" of the Boston police Department. During the past two years, he has rushed fifteen times to the call of distracted parents whose children, in some way or other, became trapped behind locked doors. In some cases Walker had to climb up the outsides of buildings to release children locked in the rooms.

TOT ATE GOLDFISH

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—A broad grin was the only noticeable effect Bobby Perkins, 14 months old, showed after eating live goldfish from a bowl belonging to his mother, Mrs. Frank L. Perkins. When she found him he was holding the tail of one of the fish in his hand. The head and body had disappeared, as had several other fish that were in the bowl.

MAKES YOU LOSE UNHEALTHY FAT

A young woman of Norwich, Conn., writes: "I lost 16 lbs. with one bottle of Kruschen. Being a busy mother it was hard to keep down, but since I am taking Kruschen I eat plenty, eat as usual and lose fat, too."

To take off fat—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—one bottle that lasts four weeks costs but little—get it at any drugstore in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the SAFE and HARMLESS way to lose fat—your money gladly returned. Don't accept anything but Kruschen if you want to reduce safely.

NO WORRIES ON MEMORIAL TRIP

"There is nothing to worry about."

For this reason because one record-low price covers the entire transaction—many local people are making reservations for the Baltimore and Ohio all-expense tour to Washington over Memorial Day. The trip is sponsored by this newspaper in connection with the B. & O.

From the time you get aboard one of the Baltimore and Ohio trains on Tuesday, May 29, until you alight at the end of the journey on Saturday, June 2, everything is taken care of for you. Not a single detail calls for the payment of a penny; not a single detail concerning plans or arrangement is left to worry the traveler.

To all intents and purposes, you are a guest of the 103 year old railroad system, one of the world's greatest, by the way. You will be a member of a large party yet individual attention will be given to your every want and whim.

MEALS IN DINER

Excellent meals will be served you in the B. & O. diner, than which there is nothing superior. The maximum coach accommodation will be 40 in 80-passenger cars.

When you reach Washington, you will call the New Colonial Hotel your home, where good meals and attractive rooms will be provided. All the sights of the Capital—and there are almost too many for enumeration—will be ready for you, with all necessary transportation, transfer of baggage, tips, sight-seeing trips, etc., provided.

Everything has been planned for your comfort, your convenience, your supreme enjoyment. Hence it is not at all surprising that so many local people are "talking up" this Memorial Day Tour, and that so many are making reservations.

Complete information will be cheerfully furnished at our office, where reservations also may be made. The entire cost of this all-expense tour is only $29.00, which should supply the biggest dollar's worth of travel, entertainment, and education ever offered you.

Time is growing short and quick action is advised.

Poet - Pedestrian

AKRON, O.—Orlando Nelson Potter, famed Akron poet-pedestrain, celebrated his 77th birthday anniversary recently by walking from this city to Cleveland, a distance of 40 miles. Potter takes these jaunts quite often. If his feet get hot while walking, Potter says he pours water on his shoes.

Writes, Directs Play for Seniors

Above is shown E. K Povenmire, of the high school faculty, who is the author and director of "Buttered Side Down," a three-act comedy to be presented at the high school auditorium tonight and tomorrow night, Thursday and Friday, May 24th and 25th.

The stage set for the play was designed by Mr. Povenmire and built by members of the senior class. The costumes and properties are also being furnished by members of the cast.

According to Mr. Povenmire, the buying of the gray stage curtains several years ago showed good judgment due to the fact that they can be adapted to almost any scene that can be presented on the stage.

The cast and technical staff is as follows: John 'Pop' Smith, Lyman England; Elly Smith, Mary Ellen Kirkpatrick; Fred Upham, Thomas Harmon; Eulalie Upham, Betty Rae Brown; Dorsey Upham, John Robinson; Eloise, Margie Brown; Gus, Lee Cook; Henry Miller, William Ashbrook; Mr. Larson, Russell Skaggs; Professor Ebright, Robert May; Alvira Jones, Ruth Newland; Penelope Jones, Mary Curtain; Mary, Charlotte Moore; Maude, Margaret Bower; Martha, Betty Barnes; Mary Katharine May, Wardrobe mistress; Mary Katherine Wolfe, property mistress; Martha Rader, director's assistant; James Smith and Evelyn Roof, publicity; James Packard and Dorothy Bartley, ticket sales; William Weldon, stage manager; Dale Ankrom, Robert Friece, William Wilkins and Earl Gordon, stage crew.
